Kaiser Permanente's approach to community health needs assessment

The Affordable Care Act (ACA) was enacted in March 2010 to make health insurance available to more people, expand the Medicaid program, and support innovative medical care delivery to lower health care costs. The ACA also requires that nonprofit hospitals conduct a community health needs assessment (CHNA) every three years and develop an implementation strategy (IS) in response to prioritized needs.

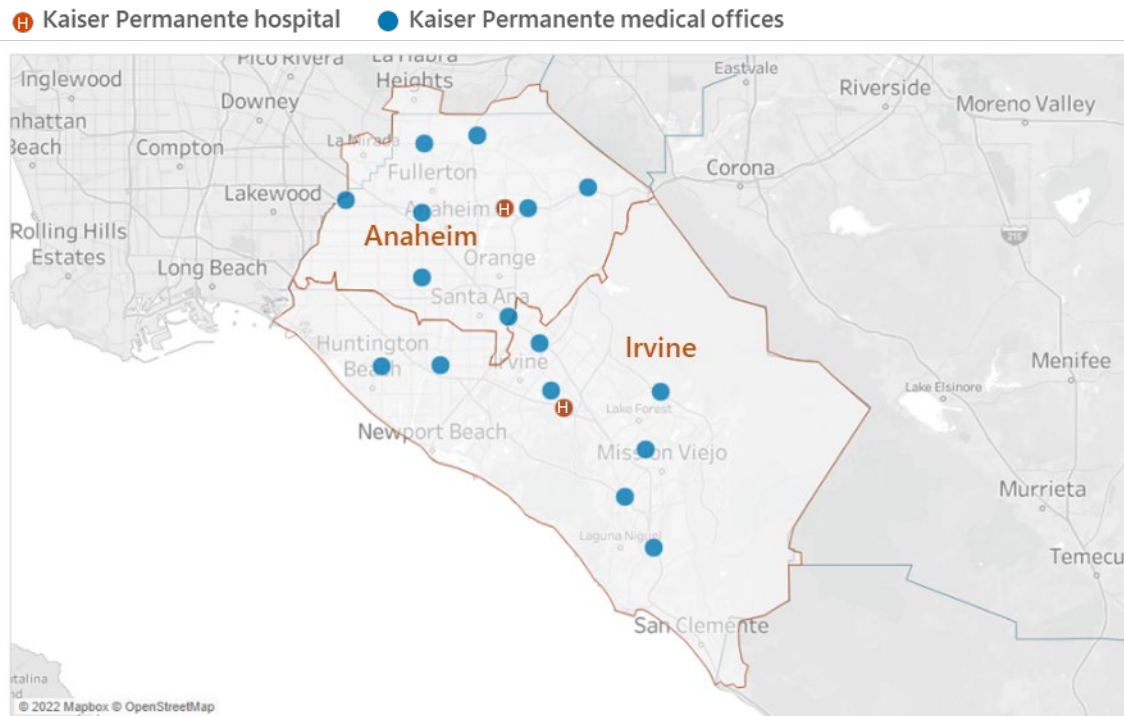

Kaiser Permanente's CHNA process is driven by a commitment to improve health equity. Our assessments place a heavy emphasis on how the social determinants of health — including structural racism, poverty, and lack of access to health-related resources such as affordable housing, healthy food, and transportation — are affecting the health of communities. By analyzing community-level data and consulting individuals with deep and broad knowledge of health disparities, the Community Health team in each KP service area has identified and prioritized needs unique to the community served. Each service area has developed an IS for the priority needs it will address, considering both Kaiser Permanente's and the community's assets and resources.

The Kaiser Permanente Orange County–Anaheim and Irvine medical centers 2022 CHNA report and three-year IS are available publicly at <https://www.kp.org/chna>. In addition, the IS will be filed with the Internal Revenue Service using Form 990, Schedule H.

Kaiser Permanente's implementation strategy process

Identifying the highest priority needs with an equity lens informs our community investments and helps us develop strategies aimed at making long-term, sustainable change, allowing us to deepen the strong relationships we have with other organizations that are working to improve community health.

To identify the significant health needs that Kaiser Permanente Orange County–Anaheim and Irvine medical centers will address in the 2022 three-year Implementation Strategy, Kaiser Permanente Orange County–Anaheim and Irvine medical centers Community Health considered a set of criteria that includes:

- Severity and magnitude of need: How health measures compare to national or state benchmarks, the relative number of people affected, impact of COVID-19 on the need
- Community priority: The community prioritizes the issue over other issues
- Clear disparities or inequities: Differences in health factors or outcomes by geography, race/ethnicity, economic status, age, gender, or other factors
- Leveraging Kaiser Permanente assets: Kaiser Permanente can make a meaningful contribution to addressing the need

Health needs Kaiser Permanente Orange County–Anaheim and Irvine medical centers plan to address

The health needs in the Orange County–Anaheim and Irvine service areas that will be addressed during 2023-2025 are:

- 1. Mental & behavioral health: Mental health: needs in Orange County are particularly apparent among youth and the uninsured. Uninsured individuals have higher rates of suicidal ideation and higher rates of having serious psychological issues during the past year. Teens in Orange County are more likely than other California teens to have needed help for mental and emotional issues in the last year, and this need is even greater among Asian and Pacific Islander teens. Improving the mental health crisis response system and improving services for younger children were among the recommended strategies for improving local mental health.
- 2. Access to care: Latinos and Asians in Orange County are more likely to be uninsured compared to Latinos and Asians in California overall, and uninsured rates can vary significantly by ZIP code. In the Irvine service area, access to care is geographically associated with communities in which a larger proportion of people of color live: The increased use of telehealth since the start of the COVID-19 pandemic has improved access to care in some ways but can be difficult to navigate for some populations. The importance of cross-service collaboration was also highlighted as key to improving overall access to care.
- 3. Income & employment: Inequities of income and employment in Orange County tend to be associated with geographic patterns of de facto racial segregation. In communities of color unemployment rates tend to be higher and median incomes lower. As one key informant noted the high costs of living impacts people more, so there is less money for health care, and other things. Orange County is an expensive place to be poor. Overall, many employees who work in Orange County tend to have long commutes, as they are forced to live far from their workplace where housing is more affordable. In addition, the lack of affordable childcare (for working parents) as also identified as a key concern for Orange County.

4. Housing: Rent and mortgage costs are very high in Orange County. In addition, higher rates of overcrowded housing and lower home ownership rates tend to be associated with geographic areas that have a higher percent of people of color. The high cost of housing was attributed to an overall housing shortage, high development costs, and opposition to affordable housing projects from existing property owners. The cost of housing has made it difficult for younger individuals and newer families to afford local housing, and many are forced to move out of the area.

5. Food insecurity: Some areas within Orange County have very high rates of students eligible for free and reduced-price lunches, including Santa Ana, Anaheim, Costa Mesa, and Garden Grove. In addition, Orange County teens consume much fewer servings of fruits and vegetables, and more fast food, than California teens in general. Streamlining the administrative process for Cal Fresh enrollment, as well as further tailoring supportive food programs to individuals' nutritional profiles, especially for older individuals, were recommended as local improvements.
